

What Happens if My Vehicle Doesn't Pass Emissions?

If your vehicle should not pass emissions, our staff will be able to help explain the problem you may have and how to correct it. We will be able to address any questions or concerns you may have.

Once the problem is corrected, an emissions re-test can be performed as long as it is within 30 days of the original inspection. Your first emission re-rest is free as long as it is within the 30 day period.

According to the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation Website: <https://www.dmv.pa.gov>

- After Emission repairs are made, You are entitled to 1 free re-test, as long as you return to the same certified Emission Station within 30 days of the initial Emission Test (Must bring original paperwork from initial test). If your vehicle still does not pass emissions, you may be eligible for a one-year waiver.
- Any Repairs made at another shop or by the owner may qualify for the waiver with receipts of parts/invoices
- To apply for a waiver, you must spend a minimum of $150.00 on emission repairs related to the fail report. You must also provide a signed repair data form and copies of repair receipts.
- In some instances, you may spend more to address the problem. An additional charge will be incurred for a waiver.
- This information is then submitted to the state for approval. If approved, the emission waiver sticker can then be issued. A waiver can only be issued from a certified emission repair station.
- A vehicle must pass emissions and be issued an emissions sticker before a safety inspection sticker can be applied to your vehicle.
